Gordon Riedel studied at the University of Tübingen and at the Humboldt University of Berlin, where he specialised in commercial law.

Gordon Riedel completed his legal clerkship in the district of the Oberlandesgericht Brandenburg. During his administrative traineeship, he gained his first experience in private construction law for a public client. After completing his second state examination, Gordon Riedel was admitted to the bar in June 2018. Initially, he joined a renowned medium-sized law firm specialising in construction and real estate law.

In May 2019, Gordon Riedel joined the Berlin office of Leinemann Partner Rechtsanwälte as a lawyer. The focus of his work lies in the area of construction-related advice and litigation, primarily in building construction, infrastructure measures and plant construction. Furthermore, Gordon Riedel advises property developers on project execution.

Gordon Riedel also appears as a speaker at conferences and construction law seminars, such as at the BBA - Akademie der Immobilienwirtschaft and Achema Pulse 2021.

He is a specialist lawyer for construction and architectural law and a member of the Berlin Bar Association.
