Dr. Oliver Homann has been practicing as a lawyer with a focus on advising customers in the procurement and construction law fields since 1996.

In the private construction law sector, Dr. Homann's activities are focused on providing legal advice to major construction projects and on representing his clients on complex questions concerning supplemental services and warranties. He has achieved some impressive results for his clients through in-depth examination and analysis of the respective construction law problems - both during arbitration proceedings as well as before the ordinary courts of law. Both the WirtschaftsWoche business news magazine and the Handelsblatt trade journal have quoted Dr. Homann as being a construction "lawyer worthy of special recommendation" in their 2020 nationwide rankings.

In the procurement law field, Dr. Homann supports public contracting entities with the design of their award procedures on the one hand - ranging from drawing up the tender documentation and conducting the award procedure to the final award decision. On the other hand, Dr. Homann also advises bidders on how to compile their tenders - supporting them throughout the bidding procedure until they have been awarded the contract. In addition, he has successfully represented the interests of his clients in numerous prestigious procurement review processes, in particular in the construction, IT and service areas.

Dr. Homann holds diverse seminars on construction and procurement law and is often published in standard procurement law reference works. Furthermore, he regularly publishes contributions in the "IBR Immobilien- & Baurecht" real estate and construction law magazine and other construction and
